

See Palestine as New Base When British Leave Egypt

CAIRO, (AP)—Proposed evacuation of British troops from Egypt after 64 years is concentrating attention on Palestine, possibly as a base from which Britain may guard her oil and key communications in the Middle East.

Most military men agree Egypt is the best base in the world for the world. If the front door on the Mediterranean is closed as it was to considerable extent by Axis airplanes for a time during the Second Great War, supplies can come through the Red Sea, by air, by rail, and by sea. The British army and naval depots built up over many years and a crossroads of commercial air lines.

Britain's Labor government, hoping to win Egypt's goodwill and new alliance, proposed a withdrawal agreement.

Now expect this to be accomplished overnight. Reliable sources say, however, the troops definitely are going and that the first phase, involving withdrawal of troops from the Canal zone within something like eight months, is already under way.

In the canal zone the R.A.F. maintains a major base with supporting shops, and the British army has enormous supply depots. When the British leave the last of the troops, the British army will have been the subject of much discussion between Anglo-Egyptian delegations negotiating the withdrawal of troops from the Canal zone within something like eight months, is already under way.

Next to Egypt, Palestine is regarded as the best available base. It lies across the path of any attack on the canal from the northeast. It is next door to Egypt and controlled by rail and road. Should Egypt agree to the return of British forces in an international emergency, they would be right at hand.

The coastal plain of Palestine, between Tel Aviv and Jerusalem, already holds several R.A.F. fields and can take many more. It also is dotted with the tents of the British army, engaged recently in operations against Jewish terrorists.

Haifa offers a partial substitute for the naval facilities of Alexandria and Port Said, and a pipeline from the Mosul oilfield in Iraq makes available fuel for the Mediterranean fleet there.

Posties End Strike; Face Piles of Mail
BOMBAY, (Reuters)—Postal deliveries were resumed Monday for the first time in more than three weeks when postmen and lower-grade postal workers returned to work after receiving what were described as "important concessions."

They tackled piles of accumulated letters and mountains of parcels and it will be some days before the situation is normal.

The city's telegraph workers, however, remained on strike. Two rival unions of telegraph workers decided to combine to continue the strike. Two hundred men, who did not resume work with the postmen and postal staff, are joining the new union and continuing their strike.

Quiz Kid's Stunt Failed This Time

PHILADELPHIA, (AP)—Philadelphia's tricycle-riding "quiz kid" tried it again—but the cops know him now.

Paul Rider, five, took a three-mile ride Monday night and wound up in the police station. He was charged with disturbing the peace after he overhauled officers with questions as they sought to learn his identity for nearly 20 hours.

The "quiz kid" didn't bother with questions this time, "just called Paul's grandmother, Mrs. Helen Plover, who came for him."

Say Molotov Got Urgent Message

LONDON, (CP)—Canadian newspapers seized upon Foreign Minister Molotov's exit just prior to Prime Minister King's speech Friday at the 21-power peace conference as if it were an act of deliberate discourtesy to Mr. King.

The London News Chronicle said Tuesday in a headline: "Molotov's departure a brief consultation." Referring to the temporary disappearance of the Soviet foreign minister from the plenary session just before Mr. King addressed the body, the News Chronicle commented: "All that in fact happened was that Mr. Molotov received an urgent message from one of his secretaries and went out into the corridor for a brief consultation. His immediate Russian colleagues remained in their seats and after a few minutes he returned to the chamber."

Sp-phobia, as we know, has reached dizzy heights in Canada; and the unhappy impression in the Canadian press that Mr. Molotov left the conference in a spirit of disdainful contempt.

Ross Munro, Canadian Press correspondent covering the peace conference, reported from Paris at the time of the incident: "There is a possibility that Mr. Molotov's swift exit was a diplomatic rebuff to Canada, but there is no evidence to prove this. At any rate the Canadians aren't worried about it and neither is anyone else."

Munro reported that Mr. Molotov was followed from the chamber by two Russian generals and a civilian—all members of the Soviet delegation. The only senior Russian official to remain during Mr. King's speech was Fedor Gusev, Soviet ambassador to Britain and former ambassador to Canada, he said.

Munro said he tried to reach members of the Soviet delegation and their press officer for an explanation of Mr. Molotov's exit, but was told that no one was available to speak in the delegation's hotel quarters. "The press officer answered Munro's queries with: 'I don't know. It is impossible.'"

Munro suggested in his report of the incident "It is probable the explanation of Mr. Molotov's exit, but was told that no one was available to speak in the delegation's hotel quarters. "The press officer answered Munro's queries with: 'I don't know. It is impossible.'"

Former Dictator Walks to Death

WASHINGTON, (NANA)—The U.S. is considering executing the 100,000,000-yen holdings of the giant Japanese Zaibatsu trust—combine and its subsidiaries.

A confidential report, prepared by Prof. Corwin D. Edwards, an expert, proposes that the state and war departments break up the huge Zaibatsu trust and destroy any possibility of Jap rearmament after the occupation.

The crux of the plan, it was learned, calls for almost total liquidation of the 14-family group financial empire that almost single-handedly industrialized Japan for war against the United States.

This would be accomplished by Allied seizure of the 2,000-odd plants, associated corporations and smaller companies belonging to the combine and by resale of the bulk of the holdings for future empires and small business at nominal prices.

Nurture Freedom
To nurture the growth of free enterprise, the U.S. would underwrite post-war markets and credits for the new owners.

Corwin, a professor at Northwestern University, headed the so-called "Zaibatsu Mission" to Tokyo. It was believed that the mission's complete report has not yet been completed to the Far Eastern commission.

Some doubt is expressed that Russia would agree to the plan. It is represented, has adopted only an official policy on reparations priority, in which it provides that if there are five plants and four of those are earmarked for reparations, reparations will be given to the Zaibatsu.

While breaking up of the Zaibatsu has been suggested earlier by MacArthur, this is the first detailed blueprint for "liquidating" the huge Jap combine. No dollar would be given to the combine, but can be given because of the lack of open exchange rates on the post-war.

It is known that the Zaibatsu was powerful during the war, that it was a powerful force in Japan, and that it was a powerful force in Japan, and that it was a powerful force in Japan.

Most powerful of the group were the houses of Iwano, Sumitomo, and Yasuda. It is estimated that during the war they had a combined income of $100,000,000,000.

Here to look like state department experts break down the holdings of the two leading families.

Several of the companies, functioning through 900 associated firms, 181 subsidiaries and 27 lesser companies. The big foreign outlet, the Mitsui Trading Company, was capitalized at $100,000,000 and controlled 38 operating companies.

Mitsubishi controlled 700 operating companies, about 50 subsidiaries. It functioned through the Mitsui heavy industry trust, subsidiary with more than $200,000,000 in capital and nearly 80 operating companies. Its trading subsidiary had about 180 separate companies.

As a result, 175 Indians presented themselves for immunization for an increase of 150 over the number who volunteered for the injections last year.

If the child had died it would have been the other way around, I guess, he said.

SENTENCED TO DEATH
MANILA, (AP)—Jahime Pujil, who admitted participating in the slaughter of more than 200 unarmed Filipinos, Monday was sentenced by a war crimes commission to death by hanging. He was 60th Japanese to be given the death sentence in the Philippines for war atrocities.

It is coming with its own. Toronto leads the way with sales this year showing a 79 percent jump. One reason advanced in these cities is that ex-servicemen returning to civilian life want to get as far as possible from army-type clothing.

In Halifax, where sales are up, the store manager credits the increase to the fact President Truman wears one.

In Ottawa there also has been an increase but the bow tie in the retail has fared with other post-war shortages and some salesmen say "We can sell them—if you can get them."

Marines in China Will 'Shoot Back'

SHANGHAI, (AP)—United States Marines are on alert in China at their present strength of 22,000 to 23,000 and will "shoot back" if attacked by Communist forces, they declared Monday in answer to speculation concerning the July 29 battle between Marines and Chinese Communists.

Chinese Communists, long accusing the U.S. of supporting the Nationalist government's campaign of aggression in China, have continued their campaign of aggression in north China.

The Marines' tasks include support of the Peiping executive headquarters, which is striving to implement a Chinese trade protection of marine property and installations.

Atomic Age Now Is One-Year-Old

OAK RIDGE, Tenn. (AP)—The atomic age was one year old Tuesday and in this historic city where it was born, the birthday party was virtually unnoticed.

There was no celebration planned to observe the first anniversary of the atomic bombing of Hiroshima. Instead, scientists, who a year ago were awaiting reports on the havoc wrought, now are seeking ways of transforming the awesome forces into useful tools for mankind.

One by-product of the chain-reaction uranium events that developed the atomic bomb already has been released to medical science.

This Rule Sure Tough On Hunters

With no malice aforethought or impugning the majesty and dignity of the law it appears from a paragraph analyzing Section 36 of the 1946 Game Act that certain minions of justice will not suffer unduly from meatless days when the big game season rolls around.

The paragraph analyzing Section 36 "provides that any person who by mistake or otherwise, unlawfully kills any big game animal must forthwith dress the carcass and deliver the meat and hide in a good state of preservation to the nearest game officer, forestry officer, constable or justice of the peace, who will attend to the final disposition of the meat."

Imagine the chagrin of the offending hunter as he stood by while witnessing the devouring of a succulent venison steak existent due to his effort but appropriated and disposed of by a peace officer, without even a meat ration coupon to show his friends as an evidence of his hunting ability!

Many Citizens Attend Funeral

Burial took place in the Clover Bar Cemetery.

Charge German Plants Stripped and Looted

BY M. S. HANDLED
MOSCOW, Aug. 6. (BUPr) - The Tass Agency charged in a Berlin dispatch today that industrial plants in the American and British zones of Germany earmarked for reparations have been stripped, looted or sold to German firms.

"TODAY IS THE FIRST anniversary of the Potsdam Declaration in which Britain and the United States pledged to deliver to Russia a percentage of the removable industrial equipment in their zones." "As a result, there is no industrial equipment, or only incomplete units of no value, at the present time in many plants listed for reparations," Tass said.

The agency listed several plants in the American zone from which equipment had been removed, although they were listed for reparations payments.

"In the first place this applies to plants of the aircraft industry, namely 10 aircraft plant branches of the Messerschmitt firm in the American zone from which all equipment has been entirely disappeared," Tass said.

"AMERICAN AUTHORITIES at Landsberg refused permission to inspect the Dornier aircraft plant, also on the reparations list, declaring there was no equipment whatsoever in this plant."

(Several weeks ago the United States announced that shipments of industrial reparations material from the American zone to Russia had been halted. The Potsdam agreement gave Russia 10 per cent of removable industrial equipment in the western zones, plus 15 per cent for which she has to pay in goods.)

The Tass dispatch added: "About 30 units of incomplete aircraft plant are listed for reparations, while there is complete equipment of good quality in plants' stores which hasn't been handed over for reparations and which is being sold to German firms."

"THERE ALSO IS NO equipment at the present time in the Kellier and Manz plant at Anspach. About 50 automatic lathes have been shipped from this plant to the stores of - Brewery."

Tass said similar facts had been noted in the British zone.

"For instance, occupation authorities at Hamburg ordered the destruction of the experimental research basin, whose valuable

Legislative Building Attracting Tourists

The august architecture, marble faced cylindrical columns and deep-carpeted assembly chamber of the Legislative building as an attraction to holiday tourists is returning to its popularity of the peak tourist year of 1941 when the United States entered the war and civilian travel dropped to almost nil.

IN ADDITION TO numerous visitors from the deep south of the United States, Mexico and South America, the building which has been visited this year by families from Australia, England, Straits Settlements and some Canadian students whose intentions are to take up their work in various parts of the world, including as far east as China.

Many tourists who on former occasions have visited famed holiday resorts in Europe and have seen for the first time Alberta's scenic treasures in the Rockies are lavish in their enthusiasm for Alberta and northwestern Canada.

SOME HAVE SAID in effect that the Swiss and Bavarian Alps, although distinguished by centuries of historical background, recorded in the music of great composers and chronicled by the pens of honored authors, cannot compare with the beauty and magnificence of among others Banff, Lake Louise, Maligne Lake and the mountainous contours and silver-mirrored lake bodies in Jasper National Park.

Three gentlemen, custodians of the Legislative buildings, H. Pearson, A. McPhee and A.R. Dawson, daily escort many visitors through the building showing them the many different sections of interest while endeavoring to reply to the many questions asked during a tour.

A MODEST BUT impressive display of Indian relics, wild animals and birds indigenous to the Canadian north and realistically preserved in lifelike poses through clever taxidermy is the chief attraction for visitors' children, who have been seen on occasion to hesitate at approaching too near a mounted Siberian timber wolf, larger

Why Grow Old?

Actress Suzi Crandall gives her feet a workout by trying to pick up a pencil with them. It's a little trick Josephine Lowman told her about.

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

RECENTLY I HAVE been writing oftener than usual about feet because there seems little doubt that thousands more people now suffer from this trouble since the war. Many women were on their feet for hours and hours longer than usual.

Chiropodists or the western division of the Chiropodist Society of Pennsylvania, sponsored a Foot Health Week from May 18 to May 25 to see if they could do something to impress the public with the vital need for preventing and treating feet disorders.

They said, "Tired, overworked feet, on duty 16 hours out of 24, don't have to organize. They strike when not treated fairly, and when they do, it means real trouble."

WAR-TIME WALKING caused plenty of fatigue sit-downs, according to chiropodists, who say that more than 90 per cent of all the people are afflicted with some form of foot trouble.

I am sure many persons who have foot disability do not realize it and may attribute general fatigue, back ache and leg aches, to other causes. Here are a few suggestions from chiropodists for the health of your feet:

1. While seated, move the toes vigorously back and forth and go through the motions of grasping with them.
2. Raise and lower the body while standing on tiptoe.
3. Alternately walk on the inner and outer borders of the feet; be sure to lift the bottoms of the feet clear off the floor.
4. Be careful about the fit of your shoes.
5. BATHE FEET DAILY. Dry them thoroughly.
6. Alternate shoes and change hose daily. Avoid damp foot wear.

If you wish to have my leaflet No. 14 "Take Care of Your Feet," send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Josephine Lowman in care of The Edmonton Bulletin.

British Nationality Retained by Women
LONDON, (CP)—Agreement in principle among British and the dominions on prospective legislation governing nationality of married women was announced Friday in the commons by Home Secretary David Lloyd George.

He said the British, Canadian, Australian, New Zealand and South African governments agreed the law should provide that a British woman marrying a foreigner would not lose her British nationality unless she takes some active step to renounce it, even though she acquired her husband's nationality under the law of his country.

Secretary Admits To Licking Fingers

LONDON (Reuters)—Dr. Edith Summerskill, Britain's parliamentary secretary to the Ministry of Food, looks apologetic but she likes to lick her fingers after eating a chocolate bun.

In the House of Commons Friday a member complained about the bad manners of some customers in a self-service cafeteria. Called on to reply, attractive, red-haired Dr. Summerskill said:

"I have to plead guilty myself to licking my fingers after a chocolate bun—and I defy any members to say they don't lick theirs, particularly today when it is so difficult to get chocolate."

McClure, of Edmonton, became the bride of Mr. Clifford Johnson, only son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Johnson, also of Edmonton, and Miss Dorothy May Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Her jewelry was a necklace of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom.

Proper Use of "Excuse Me" Given by Etiquette Expert

By Mrs. Cornelius Beckman
Dear Miss Beckman:
I am a teen-age reader of your column and I wish you would please answer a question that perplexes me. When is it correct to say "Excuse me," and when "Pardon me?"

Properly we say "Excuse me" or, more graciously, "Please excuse me" or "Will you excuse me?" when we are talking with someone and are called to the telephone; or when we have interrupted a person who is speaking with another person to give him or her a message.

Now about "Pardon me." I'd like to urge you to discard this phrase in favor of the more gracious, but you may not wish you were alone to yourself. "Pardon me" is a phrase which is used when we are talking with someone and are called to the telephone; or when we have interrupted a person who is speaking with another person to give him or her a message.

We say "I beg your pardon" (or a sincerely said "I'm sorry" or "I'm so sorry" if we are guilty of any serious, discursive, for example, when we get in another person's way; when we have crossed in front of someone; when we accidentally bump into a person; or when we are talking with a person in a bus or street-car; when we interrupt a person before he has finished speaking; when we speak to a stranger to ask, for instance, for a direction; when we pass between two people who are talking together; when we pass in front of people already seated in the theatre or movie, particularly if we cause them any inconvenience.

In other words, let "I beg your pardon" be a smoother-of-the-way in doing what you can do to graciously and considerately get yourself over awkward situations. It is like "Please" and "Thank you" in that we should use it more liberally than we do. And at your age begin seriously to make this manner-habit "jell," say your "I beg your pardon" with the grace and sincerity that are obviously called for when you are the inconveniencing person.

Says One-Third of U.S. Women To Work in Industry by 1950
BALTIMORE, (AP)—Route the river is here to stay. Route's colorful figure, heretofore associated only with wartime industry, will become a permanent part of the picture—so much so that in the United States by 1950 one of every three American women above the age of 14 will be working in industry.

That's the prediction of Dr. Anna M. Baetjer of the Johns Hopkins school of hygiene and public health. Dr. Baetjer, assistant professor of physiological hygiene, has made a study of the subject in her book, "Women in Industry."

She estimates that more than 15,000,000 American women will grace industrial payrolls in the next four years—only 2,000,000 fewer than the wartime peak.

At this is going to create new problems for the industrialists, says Dr. Baetjer. She reports:

"Women appear to be more critical of working conditions than men. Adequate lunch periods, rest pauses and sanitary facilities reduce fatigue and add to the happiness and efficiency of women at work, as do proper working hours and safety rules."

Women, of course, have been more efficient in work that requires manual dexterity and speed. The hand that rocks the cradle is especially adapted for such work as automobile assembly, inspection, conveyor loading, packing, paint spraying, and other light, punch-press work and—here's Route's riveting.

Britons Receive Baby Bonuses

LONDON, (CP)—Britain will begin her £100,000-a-week bonuses for babies program Tuesday.

More than 2,000,000 mothers—representing twice that many children—are expected to queue up at post offices for five shillings (£1) a week to be paid by the government for each child under 16 except the eldest.

The income tax will pay for the program. Quadruplets, four sets of twins in a single family and families of 15 or more are among the candidates for the benefit. The largest sum is expected to go to a family in Tynan, Wales, which has 12 eligible children and three who are too old. They will receive an allowance of £3 (£12) each week.

The grants are made under the family allowance act, passed in June, 1945, before the labor government came into power. The bonus represents the first implementation of a comprehensive government program of social security.

While the family allowance act is hailed as Britain's first recognition of the value of the state of parenthood, it does not match the program in Canada.

Canada has been contributing $20,000,000 monthly since summer to aid parents at the average rate of $6 for each child under 16 years of age. Some 1,200,000 youngsters, more than a fourth of Canada's 12,000,000 population, are benefited by the payments.

One of the early applicants was Mrs. John Walker of Lancaster, wife of a laborer.

"I shall have two pounds 10 shillings (£10) for my 10 children," she said happily. "It's nearly as much as our whole income before the war."

efficiency of women at work, as do proper working hours and safety rules. Women, of course, have been more efficient in work that requires manual dexterity and speed. The hand that rocks the cradle is especially adapted for such work as automobile assembly, inspection, conveyor loading, packing, paint spraying, and other light, punch-press work and—here's Route's riveting.
